

A. C. BACHMEYER, M.D.
Dean of the College of Medicine

IT has been the earnest endeavor of the Faculty of the College of Medicine to furnish you with a sound knowledge of the fundamentals underlying the Science and Art of Medicine and to inculcate the high ideals of our profession.

It is our hope that through experience, study and the further development of those individual characteristics that mark the professional man, you may all attain successful careers.

Employ every effort to improve your natural faculties, keep your minds alert and receptive for the new truths that are constantly advancing the field of our knowledge.

The same careful observations and judgments used in the laboratory are essential in the practice of clinical medicine but do not forget the patient and his viewpoint in the ardor of your interest in the existing pathology. Man is a social animal and every disease has a social aspect. Use your knowledge and insight socially as well as medically.
