THE natural dancing club of the University, Choritides, is composed of those students who are interested in working out in natural style, the interpretation of special music. One year of experience along this line is required before a tryout for Choritides Natural dancing enables one to express through free and flexible movements of the body, the meaning which she gathers from the music played. Individual translations in class are combined by the instructor to form a well integrated finished dance. In the spring, these dances, together with some original and child rhythms, are presented at a recital.
