THE ideals and traditions of old U. C. are only known by hearsay to those who first enter its portals. It naturally follows that only time spent within her walls will give one the knowledge of what those ideals and traditions stand for. If they are fully understood and absorbed one can see in them only honor and glory for old U. C. and for the community in which we live.

As Sophomores we have progressed one step upward in our striving to attain those ideals and have added our part to those worthwhile traditions. In our search for knowledge we find the University of Cincinnati a haven of endeavor, and because of it we will become better and more useful citizens and will reflect the glory of that usefulness on our Alma Mater.
