PERHAPS NO MORE SPIRITED tradition exists on the campus of the University than the annual Varsity Boatride. The event occurs late in May and is the last, as well as in many ways the most appealing, of the social events of the year. One of the big river steamers is chartered for the occasion, the student body, in sport array, teems down to the dock at the foot of Broadway, and on the rippling surface of the "beautiful river," under a luminous moon, the ride begins.

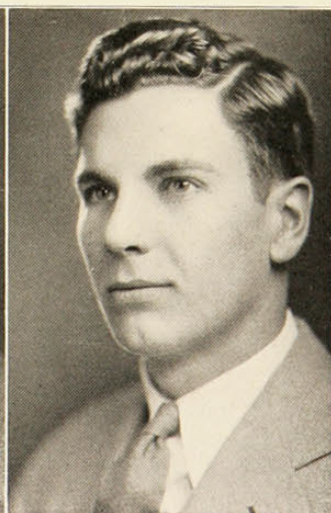

It has become a custom the last few years to elect the Ugliest Man of the University during the Boat Ride. Dancing and the advantages of spacious, shadowy decks blend with the fascination of the dark water and the mirrored moon to make the Varsity Boatride a sentimental favorite.
