

THE RATER

The rater must have boundless enthusiasm to carry her over the rough spots. Discretion must only be a small part of valor and that certain indefinable something—it, them or those—must be present. Above all else she must not be burdened with grey matter for fear she fail in sympathy and awed admiration.

THE POLITICIAN

A good politician among the fairer sex is extremely rare. There may be some who have reputations as politicians, but that is just what must not be. To get by any dirty work a woman must raise a banner on which is blazoned in huge letters, "EQUALITY, FRATERNITY, AND JUSTICE! DOWN WITH POLITICS!"

THE RUSHER

It is absolutely essential that the rusher be experienced, and it has been found that less than four years' training is insufficient. Accordingly she must be imbued with the ideal of HIGHER education and return for that extra year. She must be the kind of girl who impresses the pure and innocent Freshman at first glance; and, above all, she must be kind to her grandparents and love dumb animals.
