The second game of the season proved to be a hard fought battle which was not decided until the last few minutes. The Bearcats, playing without the services of the injured Jensen at tackle and Metz at end, found the Bishop team a hard nut to crack, and were hard pressed to win.

Wesleyan began a march down the field early in the game, and soon found herself in a scoring position. The Red and Black held for downs however, and Goldmeyer soon kicked out of danger. After several exchanges of punts, Varsity started a parade of their own with Ed Sidingier and Gilliland doing the ball-carrying. As the first quarter ended, Cincinnati was deep in Wesleyan's territory. The advance was short-lived however, and the rest of the half found the pigskin passing from one team to the other, with neither backfield accomplishing anything. The visitors nearly gave Varsity fans heart failure by almost completing a forward pass for a score as the half ended, but their end dropped the ball as the gun shot.

After an interesting display of fireworks, the second half began, and proved to be much like the first. A defensive game was almost wholly evident, and a scoreless tie was freely predicted in the stands. Varsity lost her big chance to score through a mis-play, and the kicking of Goldmeyer wrecked most of Wesleyan threats.

With only four minutes to play, and Varsity in possession of the ball at midfield, "Si" Sidingier dropped back and heaved a long pass to Metz, sophomore end, who carried the oval to the Kentucky five yard stripe before he went down under two Wesleyan tacklers. The ever-reliable Goldmeyer then catapulted over the line for a touchdown, while chaos reigned in the stands. The game ended a few moments later.

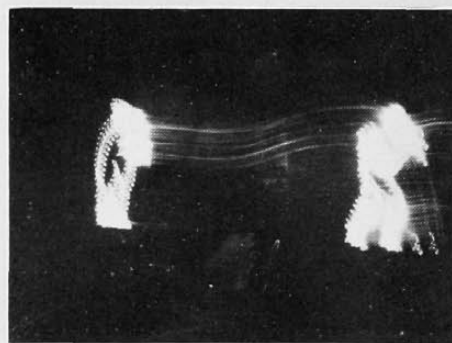

Varsity failed to show anything like a sustained offense, but appeared fairly powerful on the defense. Art Hallett, tackle, and Sipple, diminutive center, shone brightly in this respect, with Sipple roving over the field to make many tackles, and Hallett covering punts in great fashion. The team as a whole, showed a need of offensive drill and general polish if it is to become a threat in Buckeye ranks.
