

Phi Sigma Sigma Convention Dance

Phi Sigma Sigma held their national convention in Cincinnati this year which meant that the local chapter had to invest in a new wardrobe to show the other chapters just what was what in the latest in toggery. All the local merchants were jumping up and down with glee but father only sank lower and dragged out the old check book. The formal dinner was held at the Chatter-box and the camera was on hand to record the memorable event.

Beauties! Beauties? Well, anyway they go by that title. And one must respect the choice and taste of others. We feel it necessary to mention at this time that these "beauties" are the selection of the sororities on the campus and not ours. You couldn't even convince a blind, deaf and dumb man at U. C. that real beauty made the University of Cincinnati the headquarters for her conquests of the heart of man. We will admit under pressure, however, that these babes aren't so bad.

Four ladies of the late afternoon enjoying a coke at Shipley's. They are thinking of the picture taken this morning and of the possibilities of making the beauty section of this sterile sheet. Some enter the contest because they want to, some because the actives tell them to, and some because they don't know just what its all about.
