A tough break probably cost the Bearcats a victory in the Denison meet. The affair was run at Granville and Knisely, Cincinnati's dash ace, failed to compete at all, an automobile break-down making it impossible for him to reach the field. The score was 67-64, with Varsity's relay team losing the deciding race by inches. Knisely's presence would almost certainly have given Cincinnati more points in the dashes, and without a single doubt would have reversed the result in the relay.

In the sixth meet of the season, one "Shipwreck" Kelly, aided by Kentucky State's track team conquered Varsity, 78½-52½, and when we comment thusly we are not trying to be funny. For all that Mr. Kelly did was to win the 100 and 220 yard dashes, cop the 440 and the broad jump, and run as anchor man on a winning relay team. That big blonde from ole Kaintuck was all over the field! As for the meet—it was hard fought and closely contested from the start to finish. In the 220, Knisely ran the great Kentuckian to a standstill for five-sixths of the race, but Kelly came through with a supreme effort to win by a scant yard. The broad jump saw Knisely and Pownall of Cincinnati make good jumps to apparently cinch first and second in the event. Then the pestiferous Kelly nonchalantly clicked off an effort which capped Pownall's best by a mere inch—and so the event went to the Wildcats. To cap his dastardly work—this one man track team ran away with his end of an otherwise close relay race, and made himself distinctly the hero of the day. We earnestly hope that Mr. Kelly will confine his efforts to football in the future and give Cincinnati the break!

The final meet, with Kenyon, proved to be "a la Miami." That is, the Bearcats won an overwhelming victory, 111-6, making a clean sweep of the first places, and taking all but one second place, Kenyon met a team far above its class in this meet, with the inevitable result.

Varsity closed a poor season by finishing fifth in the B. I. A. C., at Athens, where Wesleyan and Miami, as usual, battled for the title.
