The theme of Summer, of renewed life and full bloom, is an appropriate symbol of the position of Chess at the University of Cincinnati. The "royal and ancient game" has been developed to an enviable position within the past few years, through the efforts of five incomparable and stalwart players: Zeligs, Theimer, Teegarden, Koch and Baxter. For several years this team was never defeated in match play, and defeated some of the very strongest college teams. In 1930 the team composed of Theimer, Teegarden, Koch and Herget won the Ohio Intercollegiate Championship, losing only one game in the entire tournament. The team for 1931 is composed of inexperienced men, who give promise of presenting formidable opposition, but who will have to prove their mettle in competition.

The Chess Club is anxious to acquaint more of the University's students with the thrills, mysteries, and satisfactions that come from a pursuit of this intellectual recreation; and is making an effort to extend its membership to all those who are interested in this challenging pastime. This year a novel feature has been introduced into the annals of the club: a freshman co-ed, Miss Edna Baldwin, has become an enthusiastic player, and is showing rapid progress in the game. Should a few more feminine aspirants come to the fore, U. C. could place a co-ed team in the field.

In an institution of higher education Chess should find many devotees who will be able to retain the fine reputation which our university now has in this field, and the Chess Club of 1931 extends its best wishes for the future of the game of Kings and Queens.
