After the Bearcat's heartbreaking defeat by DePauw the Red and Black came back the following Saturday to pile up touchdowns, not just first downs, fans, but touchdowns and more touchdowns. The Marietta Pioneers suffered a 50 to 0 defeat, the largest score the 'Cats registered since 1923 when the University of Cincinnati defeated Case to the tune of 63 to 0.

The victory proved that the Red and Black are amply supplied with reserve material and not limited to eleven superior men but composed of twenty-nine men of about equal calibre. Every available man was given his chance to show what he could do.

Two successive marches down the field without losing possession of the ball resulted in Cincinnati touchdowns. Coach Dana King then substituted practically a whole new team. During the remainder of the game King took advantage of every opportunity to send in fresh substitutes and no less than fifty men from the U. C. squad were used.

Little Ed. Smith, diminutive halfback and unheard of till this game, proved to be the outstanding star. Once in the open he was good for twenty to thirty yards. The Marietta boys just couldn't bring this twisting, dodging halfback to the ground. Ding Saler plunged through the line whenever called upon for a few yards and a first down. All the boys played equally well for McMicken and gave promise of being the best machine the Bearcats have produced in a decade or more.

Sidinger — Quarterback

Brown — Guard

Schneider — Guard
