to intellectual gatherings, as well as to inspiring services, the Y. M. C. A. ministers to every phase of student life. More and more the Y. M. C. A. is acquiring a rare significance and personality exemplified in the character of David B. Gamble, Christian Gentleman, whose memory it perpetuates.

"For youth he opened the gate.
To youth he showed the way.
With youth he traveled on."

Woman's Dormitory

The women students from out of town find the newly remodeled dormitory at 166 McMillan street a cheerful and homelike place in which to live during the school year. Twenty-one co-eds from eight different states have made this dorm their home, and with the increasing enrollment of out-of-town girls, an even greater number are expected to live there in the future.

This dormitory, which was established last year, is conducted under the guidance of the Woman's Alumnae Association of the University, through whose financial aid the building was made available. It is only a temporary building. Plans for the future include a new and more elaborate building built especially for the purpose of being a dormitory. It may be a number of years until these dreams can come true, but the Alumnae have this interest always at heart. The new dormitory will be built on Calhoun Street, between the University Y. M. C. A. and the Taft Law College.

The present house includes nine rooms on the third and second floors, and a large and comfortable living room, a pleasant gay-colored dining hall and a large modern kitchen on the main floor.

Mrs. Sayre, the house mother, is a favorite with all the girls who live in the dorm. Her kindness and motherly attention makes them happy in their quarters away from home.

The dormitory residents are a self-governing body, drawing up their own constitution and house regulations, under the leadership of W. S. G. A.
