The eve of the Valentines brought forth many strange things. The first and most lingering strangeness was that the Soph Hop was a good dance. The University "Y" club room was attractively decorated in red and white, the ceiling and chandeliers were hung with dangling hearts of all sizes. Owing to an unusually large committee who were not as diligent at selling tickets as they might have been, a rank attempt to chisel the guileless Pi Delta Epsilonites, who conducted their pledging amid the usual clapping of hands was made but was not successful, the ledger was in keeping with the general valentine spirit—red. Harry Wilsey provided excellent music. For once Dot Burkhardt was struck speechless and did the "Blushing Bride" act as she and Al Ignatius ascended the throne of hearts.
