

Sociology Club

The Sociology Club whose purpose for organization is the establishment of better feeling of fellowship among the students and with the faculty of the Department of Sociology, has included among its members the faculty, majors, minors, and students in advanced courses in the department. At each dinner meeting, which is held once a month, representative men and women are asked to speak on their particular field of work and interest in its relation to social thought. Informal discussion lends further interest to these gatherings. Among those who have spoken to the Club this year were Dr. Ellory F. Reed, head of the Trounstein Foundation; Dr. Walter H. Bucher of the Department of Geology; Dr. Gustave Eckstein, author of "Noguchi" and other popular works; Dr. F. G. Detweiler, head of the Department of Sociology of Denison University; and Mr. Joseph Sagmaster, editorial writer of the Cincinnati Times-Star.
