

Nineteen-Thirty-Two

And June . . . The culmination of four years of love . . . life . . . labor . . . and each diploma
. . . What a world of memory it suggests . . . Evenings . . . bright evenings under the starlit heavens . . . Evenings around the fireside . . . The dread of impending exams and the jollity of looking back . . . Graduation to the unending bustle of the work ing world . . . College life o'er . . . memories . . .
grand memories remain

June
