

COLLEGE VANITY FAIR READERS

JACOB W. BROWN

HARGIS WESTERFIELD

We Relegate to Limbo

COLLEGE VANITY FAIR READERS — because they think themselves the height of sophistication and the lives of all parties; because they quote; because they wonder why John Riddell has never parodied Corey Ford (one and the same to you uninitiated) because they always are broke and must borrow and lose other people's copies

HARGIS WESTERFIELD—because though a strong proponent of the Communist cause, he has joined the Kentucky National Guards; because he incessantly disturbs his classmates and professors with pedantic interruptions; because he ruins his own excellent poetry by insisting on reading it aloud in his repulsive manner; because he entirely lacks a sense of humor; because he posed for this picture

JACOB W. BROWN—just because

SAMUEL OLIVER BEALL—because as a one-column columnist, he wrote himself dry years ago; because his only purpose is to publicize his own egocentric self and Lambda Chi Alpha; because he comes out on the small end of the many petty cat-fights he starts with his more able colleagues of the News; because he fakes "color" by traipsing about in an engine-college slovenliness; because he is bumptious; because he read a book
