

The Jeanne D'Arc Circle

President Mary Alice Ravensberg
Vice-President Lucille Gibbons
Secretary-Treasurer Virginia Bottenhorn

INTIMACIES

Meet the members of the Jeanne d'Arc Circle and their distinctive mottoes.

Mary Alice Ravensberg meets difficulties in grammatical constructions, as well as in reproducing French costumes, with —

"Vouloir, c'est pouvoir."

"Where there is a will, there is a way."

When Marie Fenton begins complicating the perfect tenses of verbs, you may as well say with her —

"Le mieux est l'ennemi du bien."

"Let well enough alone."

Lucille Gibbons derives ample courage for attacking projects from the thought —

"C'est le premier pas qui coûte."

"It is the first step that costs."

In her French correspondence, Laverne Hungler is true to her conviction —

"Qui donne vite, donne deux fois."

"He who gives quickly, gives twice."

Ruth Gude justifies her timid French articulation by citing the adage —

"La parole est d'argent, le silence est d'or."

"Speech is silver, silence is gold."

The mystery of irregularities in adverbs, adjectives, and verbs, all in one sentence, is solved for Malvina Goyette when she recalls that —

"Un malheur ne vient jamais seul."

"One misfortune never comes alone."

Ethel Kneidl maintains her hopeful attitude toward the mastery of French vocabulary on the ground that —

"En forgeant on devient forgeron."

"Practice makes perfect."

For Virginia Bottenhorn there is a "golden sesame" to all the gateways of success in French contained in the proverb —

"A qui se leve matin, Dieu prête la main."

"To him who rises early, God lends a hand."

Der Lorelei Verein

President Anna Kuhn
Vice-President Cecelia Thale
Secretary Anna Stahl
Treasurer Barbara Holabach

Is Germany a country fomenting wars? Is Germany a home-land of science? It is not with these questions "Der Lorelei Verein" is concerned, but with increased interest in cultural Germany. A rich collection of pictures of beautiful German scenes, villages, costumes, cathedrals and universities, to which we added research work about them, awaits the "Lorelei Verein" of the coming year.
